

What is the big deal about xm radio reporting the local weather and traffic. Local radio stations do not have it all the time and when needed. In today's society more and more people are in their cars doing a long commute back and forth to work. The day and its commute starts earlier and earlier for most and local station, tv and radio, do not supply the information needed at early hours. Commuters can use the traffic and weather to start their early days off on the right foot. I thought it was all about suppose to be about helping the public, the consumer.
